Anthology

Introduction

Content@ingram is the Ingram Book Company's web service for providing bibliographic information through the Anthology WebFetch function.

Setup

To use content@ingram as your external data source you must enter your credentials and other information on the Tools, Options screen in Anthology. To do so, please take the following steps:

- 1) Open the Options screen from the Tools menu in Visual Anthology.
  - When you want to make changes to the Tools, Options screen you must not have any other Anthology screens open at the same time. Also, you must be the only station using the program if you are on a network.
- Choose the External Data tab. You should see a display like this one:
- 3) In the External Inventory Source field, select "Ingram content@ingram web service".
- In the Ingram Acct
  ID and Ingram
  Password fields,

- enter the login credentials provided you by Ingram.
- 5) Press <Enter> to save.
- 6) Close the Options screen, and exit and restart Anthology.

Using WebFetch

If you have been using Fetch within Anthology with the Ingram Companion or other external data source, you will find WebFetch almost identical. For example, when you invoke the Inventory Assistant by clicking on F2 while on an ISBN/SKU field or by pressing the ellipsis button, you will see a screen something like this:

Note at the bottom of the screen you can choose to search the content@ingram database by Keywords, Author, ISBN/SKU, or Title / Description. To so:

- Choose the search type you want to perform.
- Enter the value you want to search on. In this case, we are looking for the title "Vineland".

3) If there is only one result, you will be taken directly to Fetch screen where you can edit the information about this book before you import it into your database. If there are multiple results, you can sort and select the particular item that you are interested in. Note that you are interested in. No that you can also do an Internet StockCheck at this point to find out availability of the title at various vendors.
